

Analysis future vision 2BroPublishing

The future with the Lord is hopeful for his children (Jer. 29:11) as we love him. For his love came first and is unconditional (Mal 1: 2).

The number of people on the earth and the corresponding growth curve (Figure 1) is exceptional.

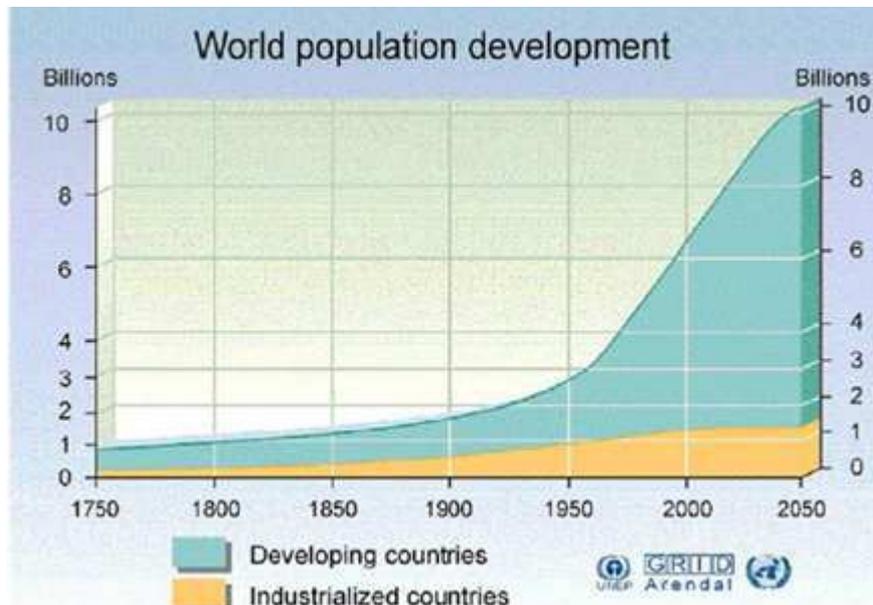

Figure 1 World population

We are in a time which is comparable to that of in the days of Noah. Lawlessness and sin increases but also grace. Yes, also grace of the Father through His Son is great because God does not want that even one man is lost (John 3:16). The Lord will leave 99 not lost sheep's behind to find that lost one (Matt 18: 12-14). But how can we face the future and is there some preparation possible?

Late last year one of our 2BroPublishing members visit a conference in The Hague ("Meet the Future") when he heard the first man on the moon (Mr. Armstrong) speak. What is special to remark is to hear a man of around 80 years speak with a lively spirit. He was asked whether he could predict the future. He replied as follows to the question, I cannot predict the future looking at my own career. I had studied to be an engineer but in no more than five years after my graduation, the Russians had the first satellite (Sputnik) around the earth upon which America wanted to respond and they managed to be the first to go to the moon. He also talked about a trend which showed a sharp curve which was that of the computer processors (semi-conductors). A comparison today's mobile phones (2GB) are up to 1 million times stronger than that of the lunar Apollo (1024-bit) processor! All he further wanted to say about the future is not that the scientist but the philosophers who had written decades or even centuries earlier about it but it was declared impossible. If this is so and that the philosophers often make use of intangible reading (spiritual / occult) then we as children of the living God should search for him in prayer for revelation of His Word of the future. This revelation we need to face the future with certainty that the Lord leads all and is good for those who love Him. 2BroPublishing wants at least publish every quarter and if the Lord leads even more frequently.

Wish you God's Merci and Truth (Prov.3: 3)!